INTRODUCTORY.

No apology, it may be hoped, is needed for producing this brief digest of some prominent facts disclosed by the "Return of Owners of Land in England and Wales, 1873." The desire of placing before the public, in a convenient shape and at a moderate price, the lucid and instructive dissertation which Mr. John Lambert, C.B., has prefixed to the voluminous Blue-book, suggested the idea of the present publication. On reprinting Mr. Lambert's "Explanatory Statement," it seemed not out of place to add a few tables, chiefly in amplification and furtherance of the observations which the Secretary of the Local Government Board has made upon the matter and preparation of the Return, diffidently helping with some statistical illustrations—illustrations drawn from the Return itself, or derived from other official sources—that have a more or less useful bearing on the great record. To the same end, the public press of the day has been laid under contribution. What in the following pages is due to the 'Times,' the 'Pall Mall Gazette,' and the 'Spectator,' is acknowledged there.

The Poor-rate Book has on this occasion, and not for the first time, been taken as the indispensable basis for an inquiry of the highest national importance, though beyond the scope contemplated in its origin as a Register of Local Assessments. The primary valuation of assessable property, the "Gross Estimated Rental" of each reputed owner, has never failed the compilers of the Landowners' Return, whatever errors or omissions they otherwise discovered, in searching the parish tax-roll. A slight account of the Parochial Assessment Returns, as made to Parliament, may be permitted to one having had the honour of serving under that statesman who, if still pursuing the high career from which he was so prematurely cut off, would have looked upon the present record of the owners of the soil with no little interest.

The first account ever obtained of the annual value of rateable property in this kingdom was collected by direction of Mr. (afterwards Sir George) Cornewall Lewis, when he occupied a seat at the Board of Poor Law Commissioners for England and Wales. The rateable value, as obtained direct from the overseers, proved to be 62,540,000*l.* Previously the property tax valuations of 1815 had been employed for estimating the pressure of the rates; Schedule A, of that the last year of the old Act, gave 53,495,000*l.* as the total sum assessed.

It was found, from the Returns collected by the Poor Law Commissioners, that landed property then contributed 52 per cent. to the aggregate assessment; dwelling houses, 37 per cent.; and all other kinds of property, 11 per cent. The relative amounts were these:

Rateable value in 1840–41 of: *	£
Landed property	32,655,137
Dwelling houses	23,386,401
All other property	6,498,492
Total	£62,540,030

* H.C. Paper, No. 235, Session 1842.

After a lapse of fifteen years, Sir George Lewis obtained a Return,* which, combined with a previous one, for the first time represented for the whole country the "Gross Estimated Rental" as well as the Rateable Value. The gross estimated rental has always appeared since in the usual Returns of valuation to poor's rate. It will not be forgotten that in 1868–69 the gross estimated rental did essential public service, and it now plays its part as an economic exponent. All the authentic valuations, up to the most recent date, are tabulated hereunder:

Parochial Year.	Poor Rate Valuations.		Parochial Year.	Poor Rate Valuations.
	Gross Estimated Rental.	Rateable Value.		Gross Estimated Rental.	Rateable Value.
	£	£		£	£
1840–41	Not known	62,540,030	1869–70	123,365,847	104,405,304
1846–47	ditto	67,320,587	1870–71	126,473,924	107,398,242
1849–50	ditto	67,700,153	1871–72	129,038,976	109,447,111
1855–56	86,077,676	71,840,271	1872–73	132,571,829	112,392,362
1865–66	110,079,308	93,638,403
1867–68	118,431,102	100,668,698	1873–74	136,408,462	115,646,631

The first complete valuation under Mr. Villiers' Act is that of 1865–66. The large increase noticeable between that year and 1869–70 is in part due to the equitable augmentation of the parish valuations effected by the Union Assessment Committees. A similar cause has been more recently and largely operative within the metropolitan boundary, and has contributed to swell the valuations in the latter years of the table. Those interested in the history of valuations for local taxation purposes will find Mr. Lambert's statement, at pp. 3 and 8, of special interest with regard to the extent that "Gross Estimated Rental" may be accepted as the measure of the owners' actual rental.

The Poor Law Commissioners, in their proceedings with reference to the Parochial Assessments Act of 1836, gave much consideration to an object which, if it had been accomplished, might have borne most usefully on the Landowners' Return of 1873—the formation of accurately constructed parish maps. In their Report of 1840 the Commissioners stated that:

"With regard to the maps which have been made under the provisions of that Act, we have endeavoured by all the means in our power to secure for those parishes in which maps were required, accurate and trustworthy documents, which might not only be useful, as conveniently indicating the rateable property and preventing the omission of any portion of it from future rates, but which should also have that degree of accuracy which should cause the maps to be received as evidence in questions of property and boundary, and to be available in the way of assistance to the projectors of great and useful public works.

"Notwithstanding the assistance we have derived from the Tithe Commissioners towards this important object, we cannot report so favourably as we could wish of the result of our endeavours. Out of the maps which have been made under the Parochial Assessments Act, less than half have been found of that degree of accuracy which would justify their being treated as first-class maps, and their receiving in testimony of such accuracy the seal of the Tithe Commissioners.

"The remainder, although of considerable utility for parochial rating, and for the apportionment of tithes, have but little claim to value as public documents; and when compared with the maps of the Irish counties, which have been made under the superintendence of the Ordnance, afford grounds for regret that the expenditure thus incurred under the Parochial Assessments Act had not been devoted towards the accomplishment of a detailed survey of England and Wales by the Ordnance Department."

The following year, they again recounted the difficulties experienced in securing maps sufficiently reliable for the public service.

"Since our last Report we continued, until the close of the year 1840, to issue orders for surveys and valuations, upon application being made to us in the form prescribed by the Parochial Assessment Act.

"The great expense attending valuations and maps, the existing state of the law, under which valuations, even when made by the highest professional authority, are not binding on the judgment of the overseers, and may be adopted or rejected on their own responsibility, the extreme difficulty of establishing and applying, even with the best assistance of the Tithe Commissioners, any test of the accuracy of maps without resorting to an examination of them on the ground by some independent surveyor (a proceeding which of course enhances the expense of the map to the parish), have tended to discourage us exceedingly in this branch of our duty; and we earnestly desire that the attention of the Legislature may be directed to framing some more general systematic mode of valuing, assessing, and surveying the whole of the kingdom, than has hitherto been devised."

A very complete set of Tithe Maps has since been collected at the office of the Commissioners in St. James' Square, S.W.

An important and reliable Paper,* on the rateable value of different descriptions of property, was laid before the House of Commons, in 1872, by the Right Hon. George J. Goschen, at that time President of the Poor Law Board. The summarised results for the whole kingdom, and for that part of it which is represented by the Landowners' Return, are these:

* The local officers were paid for their labour in collecting the information by a vote of the House.

The Union-county details are printed at p. 28.

The "thirty thousand landowners" of the Census enumerations have now passed into history. Why they were erroneously spoken of as the only holders of land on this side of the Tweed is well known; the error had its source in a peculiarity of the classification of occupations. In the Census of 1851, under the Agricultural Class, 30,315 males and females are placed as "Landed Proprietors;" in 1861 these owners were returned as 30,766. In 1871 "Landed Proprietors" had decreased nearly 8,000; the number then returned being 22,964, of whom 14,191 were males and 8,773 females. It is not known that any economic force had in a single decade driven one-fourth from their enviable position as landowners; the apparent decline is probably referrible to the elasticity of the classification itself.

To those who hold to the view that the "Land Question," when it recently emerged as a social and political topic, had reference chiefly, if not solely, to the possessors of the cultivated and improvable soil of the kingdom, a comparative statement of the agricultural and the non-agricultural acres, which together make up the rateable area of England and Wales, may be acceptable. A summary comparison is given in divisions hereunder; the particulars for counties will be found hereafter. (See p. 30.)

The total area of England and Wales, as stated in the "Explanatory Note" (see p. 10) was, according to the last Census, 37,319,221 acres; deducting the quantity within the metropolitan area, leaves 37,243,859 acres. The extent embraced by the Landowners' Return, including the estimated extent of waste lands, was 34,538,158 acres; leaving nearly 2¾ million acres to be accounted for. Some part of the land is covered with water; highways and ordinary roads require on the whole a large surface. The water covers 693,000 acres;† there are in England and Wales, according to the Fourth Report of the Local Government Board, 118,846 miles (say 119,000) of highway and turnpike roads, which, computed at an average breadth of 50 feet,* would cover 721,000 acres. This large area is exclusive of the land occupied by the roads and streets of more than 1,000 municipal borough and urban sanitary districts. Mr. Lambert has pointed out that there is great uncertainty about that part of the return purporting to show the extent of waste and common lands. Taking Wales, Lancashire, Northumberland, Lincoln, and Devon, the extent of these portions of the kingdom exceeds the rateable and waste area recognised in the Landowners' Return by more than 1,000,000 statute acres: this, however, includes the water-covered lands.

* The Table is read thus: South-Eastern Division, Cultivated Lands, 2,737,000 acres; Lands not Cultivated, 797,000 acres.

† Census of 1871, vol. ii.

It will be observed that most of the statistics, following hereafter Mr. Lambert's statement, have for this digest been arranged topographically in county divisions, and are so far in harmony with the classified enumeration of the people and their occupations in 1851, 1861, and 1871; the advantages of grouping the counties thus are too obvious to need elucidation.

Since the issue of the Landowners' Return, the necessity of some tabulation by scal of its heterogeneous mass of details has been mooted. For an example of a purely statistical method, the county of Rutland, which seemingly is without flaw, has been reduced to graduated order under four several aspects. (See pp. 26, 27.)

Combining the particulars of the tabulations [a], [b], and [c], the following synopsis of individual owners has been formed:

THE INDIVIDUAL LARGE OWNERS OF RUTLAND.

It is certain from what Mr. Lambert has distinctly intimated (p. 10) that the entire Return is at present too crude for a strictly scientific classification of all its items. Any graduated system under which the published facts should be marshalled, therefore, could only at the best be taken as approximative. But closely approximative results, such as might be laboriously drawn from the raw material of this Blue-book, are frequently the sole guides accessible to the legislator and the economist.

The Scotch Landowners' Return, a much lighter work than its English analogue, was published in 1874. On bringing the main totals of both records together, upwards of

* I am indebted to Mr. Robert Rawlinson, C.B., for the estimated width.

* Apparently inclusive of much which would neither in England nor in Wales be rated.

The experience gained by the Local Government Board in collecting the particulars for this Return has brought to light the insufficiency of the present rate-books to supply all the requisite particulars. But their defects are probably not difficult to remedy. If it had been essential to the validity of a poor's rate that the name and address of the owner and the extent of his holding should, every time a rate was made, be entered accurately in the rate-book as a precedent condition, a vast deal of labour and much uncertainty would have been spared the compilers of the Blue-book. What, if any, legal consequences should follow the rate-book registration of the ownership of land and other assessable property in this country are questions for the Legislature to determine.

It is, of course, impossible to say whether Parliament in future will require more searching inquisition into landowners' property. If it should, the five-and-twenty-inch parochial maps of the Ordnance Survey, classed and deposited in a central office, would be efficient auxiliaries. At present these maps have been published for a number of parishes, covering 12,000 square miles, and surveys for maps on the same scale, that will embrace upwards of 26,000 square miles more, have been made. If thought advisable to apply any test to "Gross Estimated Rental" as the measure of an owner's revenue, the invidious search for encumbrances could be carried out in the three Ridings by the Yorkshire Registration Office, or in extra-metropolitan Middlesex by similar agency. By the same offices the question so often asked as to the frequency with which landed property comes into the market could be answered for two of the richest counties in the kingdom.

Should Parliament consider the present Return of national importance sufficient to justify the expense of a thorough revision, that work could, I venture to suggest, be most conveniently undertaken at the Census of 1881, when the machinery of the English enumeration will probably be under the control of the Local Government Board—when the Poor Law Union clerks could be prepared to co-operate with a specially instructed body of enumerators; when a sufficient time should have elapsed to discover all the causes of defect in the so-called "Modern Domesday Book,"—then, the "Domesday Book" of the future, having with all its precedent advantages attained fulness and accuracy, could declare in no faltering accents how much it owed to the "Return of Owners of Land in England and Wales, 1873."

IN ENGLAND AND WALES.

(EXCLUSIVE OF THE METROPOLIS.)

1873.

EXPLANATORY STATEMENT.

This Return is intended to show, with respect to England and Wales (exclusive of the Metropolis),—

1. The number and names of owners of land of one acre and upwards, whether built upon or not, in each county, with the estimated acreage and annual gross estimated rental of the property belonging to each owner.
2. The number of owners of land, whether built upon or not, of less than one acre, with the estimated aggregate acreage and the aggregate gross estimated rental of the lands of such owners.
3. The estimated extent of commons and waste lands in each county.

The circumstances under which the Return was called for will be best explained by a reference to the following discussion which took place in the House of Lords on the 19th of February, 1872:

The Earl of Derby asked the Lord Privy Seal (Viscount Halifax) whether it was the intention of Her Majesty's Government to take any steps for ascertaining accurately the number of proprietors of land and houses in the United Kingdom, with the quantity of land owned by each proprietor. He should not trouble the House at any length, because he understood that the suggestion he had ventured to put into his question was acquiesced in, and would be acted upon by the Government. They all knew that out-of-doors there was from time to time a great outcry raised about what was called the monopoly of land, and, in support of that cry, the wildest and most reckless exaggerations and mis-statements of fact were uttered as to the number of persons who were the actual owners of the soil. It had been said again and again that, according to the Census of 1861, there were in the United Kingdom not more than 30,000 landowners; and though it had been repeatedly shown that this estimate arose from a misreading of the figures contained in the Census returns, the statement was continually reproduced, just as though its accuracy had never been disputed. The real state of the case was at present a matter of conjecture, but he believed, for his own part, that 300,000 would be nearer the truth, than the estimate which fixed the landowners of the United Kingdom at a tenth of that number. He entirely disbelieved the truth of the popular notion that small estates were undergoing a gradual process of absorption in the larger ones. It was true that the class of peasant proprietors formerly to be found in the rural districts was tending to disappear—for the very good reason that such proprietors could, as a general rule, obtain from 40 to 50 years' purchase for their holdings, and thereby vastly increase their incomes. In the place of that class, however, there was rapidly growing up a new class of small owners, who, dwelling in or near towns or railway stations, were able to buy small freeholds. He believed this new class would fully replace, and perhaps more than replace, the diminution in the other class to which he had referred. He apprehended that through the agency of the Local Government Board it would be easy to obtain statistical information, which would be conclusive in regard to this matter. The returns ought to include the name of every owner and the extent of his property in acres. He did not wish to have included in the Return the exact dimensions of very minute holdings; that could be met by giving the aggregate extent of holdings not exceeding an acre each, the number of separate owners being stated, but not the extent of each holding. . . . . .

THE DUKE OF RICHMOND thought this was a subject the importance of which could scarcely be overrated, and trusted that Her Majesty's Government would be able to furnish the return asked for by his noble friend. This, he thought, might easily be done through the agency of the Local Government Board. A vast amount of ignorance existed in regard to the question, and it was surely time that such ignorance was dispelled by means of documents possessing all the weight of Parliamentary Returns, and whose accuracy could not be disputed. There ought to be no alarm raised by such a Return as was asked for, because the rental need not be inserted in it, although even that was given in Scotland. In order to show the great errors into which the public might be led, he would mention a fact brought under his notice by the noble Marquess sitting near him (the Marquess of Salisbury). According to the Census of 1861, the number of landed proprietors in Hertfordshire was only 245. The noble Marquess, however, doubted the accuracy of this statement, and after taking the trouble to investigate the matter for himself, he found that the number of landed proprietors in the county of Hertford at that time, according to the rate-book, was 8,833. . . . . .

VISCOUNT HALIFAX said that his attention had been called, as had that of his noble friend opposite (the Earl of Derby), to the extraordinary statements made in certain newspapers, and at some public meetings, respecting the wonderfully small number of landed proprietors in this country. The fact was that very few persons were returned in the Census under the designation of "owners of land." He had looked over pages of the Census returns. The owners of land appeared under various designations—"gentlemen, merchants, shopkeepers, farmers," &c. Very few were returned as "landowners." . . . . .

For statistical purposes, he thought that we ought to know the number of owners of land in the United Kingdom, and there would be no difficulty in obtaining this information. He held in his hand the valuation list of a parish, giving the name of every owner, a description of the land, the estimated area, and the estimated rental. Such returns existed for every parish in England, and from them a return for all England might be compiled. He quite agreed with his noble friend, that it might not be desirable to give the rental, although he might remark that this was done in Scotland. He had in his hand the valuation roll of the county of Edinburgh, which contained the rental of every owner in that county. He believed that in Scotland no objection had ever been taken to publishing the amount of rental. The Government considered it most desirable that the return should be prepared, and what he proposed to do was to give a nominal list of every owner of land to the extent of one acre or upwards in every county of England, together with the quantity of land which each owner had in the county. In regard to owners of less than one acre, he thought it would be sufficient to state their number in each county, without specifying their names. The same process would be gone through in Scotland and Ireland.

THE MARQUESS OF SALISBURY urged that the 999 years' leaseholds ought to be included in the returns.

VISCOUNT HALIFAX said that there would be great difficulty in ascertaining the precise tenure under which property was held. He quite agreed with the noble Marquess that owners of property held for 999 years, and of land under similar tenures, should appear as owners,—and he thought it might be done. The valuation lists, however, to which he had referred, only gave information as to the ownership of land and the quantity owned. In his opinion the best plan would be to treat as owner the person immediately above the occupying tenant.

THE EARL OF FEVERSHAM suggested that the returns should give a description of the land, stating whether it was in cultivation, woodland, or moor.

VISCOUNT HALIFAX remarked that the Government could not undertake to state the description of the land. An attempt to do this would lead to inextricable confusion.

The Government having, as was intimated by Lord Halifax, determined on such a Return being made, it has since been prepared by the Local Government Board, and after considerable but unavoidable delay is now completed and presented to both Houses of Parliament.

In order that the nature and character of the Return, and of the information contained in it, may be correctly appreciated, attention should be given to the following preliminary statement, containing an account of the public documents from which the Return is compiled, of the course pursued in its preparation, of the difficulties which have been met with, and how far they have been overcome, and, finally, of the actual value of the results which have been obtained.

All the statements and information contained in this Return, with the exception of the addresses of the owners, are derived from the valuation lists, which are made out for the purposes of rating, in every parish.

A short time prior to the year 1836 the Poor Law Commissioners had issued an order directing that the poor rate should contain certain particulars, but the Parochial Assessment Act of 1836* contains the first statutory provision which requires the poor rate to be made out in a prescribed manner.

The present valuation lists are, however, prepared under the provisions of the Union Assessment Committee Act of 1862,† which was introduced by the Right Hon. C. P. Villiers, the then President of the late Poor Law Board. This Act provides for the appointment of an Assessment Committee by the Guardians of every Union for the investigation and supervision of the valuation of the several rateable properties in each parish within the Union for the purpose of assessment, and as a preliminary step to such investigation and supervision the overseers of every parish were required to make out a list of all the rateable properties in each parish, with the annual values thereof, in the following form, viz.:

Name of Occupier.	Name of Owner.	Description of Property.	Name or Situation of Property.	Estimated Extent.	Gross Estimated Rental.	Rateable Value.

There are now valuation lists in this form for every parish, except in the case of a few single parishes under separate Boards of Guardians, to which the Union Assessment

* 6 & 7 Will. IV. c. 96. † 25 & 26 Vict. c. 103, s. 11.

Committee Act does not apply, but in which the poor rate contains generally the required information.

As the valuation lists of the several parishes are deposited with the clerks of the Unions, application was made to those officers to prepare and furnish the particulars for the present Return, so far as regarded the parishes in their respective Unions, corrected as far as practicable from information within their reach, or which might be obtained from the parochial officers, with the addition of the addresses of the owners. Similar applications were made to the clerks to the guardians of single parishes not under the Union Assessment Committee Act.

The Return comprises the whole of England and Wales, exclusive of the Metropolis, and some estimate may be formed of the labour involved in its compilation when it is borne in mind that the information had to be supplied in respect of nearly 15,000 parishes containing about 5,000,000 separate assessments.

The instructions were issued to the clerks to the guardians in September, 1872, but upwards of two years elapsed before the last return was received.

The first examination of the returns disclosed nearly 250,000 defects, and these have since had to be cleared up, as far as practicable, by correspondence and other means of inquiry.

In many instances the clerks were unable to furnish the additional particulars required, and in those cases, amounting to several thousands, applications were addressed to the overseers of the separate parishes in order to obtain from them the necessary information.

It is obvious, from a mere inspection of the form prescribed by the Union Assessment Committee Act, that if the several parish lists were correctly made out, a Return of owners of land in each county in England and Wales, and of the estimated area, and the gross estimated rental of the property of each owner in the county, would be simply a consolidation for each county of the information contained in the valuation lists and rate-books for the parishes in the county. It was found, however, that the parish lists were defective, especially as regards the names of owners, and notwithstanding all the pains which have been taken, it is to be feared that many inaccuracies will be found in some of the details of the Return.

It will be convenient to refer separately to the three heads of information as regards owners of land of an acre and upwards.

These heads are—

I. The Names and Addresses of the Owners.

II. The Estimated Extent of the Land of each Owner.

III. The Gross Estimated Rental of the Property appearing under the name of each Owner.

I. Names and Addresses of Owners.

The greatest difficulty was found as to these columns.

The parish lists are prepared only for the purposes of rating, and the material [illegible]ns for the purpose of the assessments are those which contain the names of the [illegible]ers and the statements of the gross estimated rental and rateable value of the [illegible]erty in each separate occupation. The latter statements are essential to show the basis upon which the rate is to be assessed and the sums to be paid, whilst the insertion of the names of the occupiers is required to point out the persons who are liable for the several amounts assessed.

With regard to the column as to the names of the owners, however, it must be observed that although the prescribed form both of the poor rates and the valuation lists indicates that the name of the owner of the property in each separate occupation should be inserted in it, the overseers who prepare the lists are not empowered, as in the case of the valuation lists prepared under the Valuation (Metropolis) Act, 1869,* to require any return of the names of the owners to be made to them, either by the occupiers or any other persons, and probably neither the valuation lists nor the rates would be invalidated if the names of the owners were omitted altogether.

Nor is it easy, with the various tenures of property in this country, to lay down a precise rule as to what constitutes ownership.

Persons, for instance, holding property under very long leases may fairly be considered as owners; but then the question immediately arises, what length of lease is sufficient for this purpose.

There could be no question, as was said in the House of Lords, as to lessees for 999 years; and indeed lessees for shorter terms than that might properly be considered as owners.

A more difficult question arose as to lessees for 99 years, the common term of building leases, and also to some other cases.

It was said on the one hand, that the holder of a building lease for 99 years, with occupying tenants under him, especially at the commencement of his term, might fairly be considered as an owner; on the other that the holder of such a lease, when his term had nearly expired, could not be so considered. In some parts of England lands are frequently held on leases for lives constantly renewed, though without any right of renewal, and the lessees are generally treated as owners, though liable to be turned out on the expiration of the lives. Other cases of doubtful ownership might easily be suggested, and it became clear that only an arbitrary line could be drawn.

After much consideration it was determined that lessees for terms exceeding 99 years, or, with a right of perpetual renewal, should be considered as owners, but that lessees [illegible] shorter duration, or for lives, without a right of renewal, should not be

[illegible]ere issued to the Union clerks to frame their Returns in accordance [illegible]notwithstanding this direction, it is extremely probable that in several instances where properties have been held for long periods on beneficial leases or for lives, as is the case in some parts of England, the names of the lessees have been entered in the Return as owners, as neither the clerks nor the overseers would have had any reason to suppose that they were not the owners in fee.

In some of the Rating Acts the term "owner" means either the immediate lessee of the premises, or the person receiving the rent of the same "for the use of any corporation or any public company, or of any landlord or lessee who shall be a minor or married woman, or insane, or for the use of any person for whom he is acting as agent." It is obvious that such persons are not really the owners of the property, and directions were therefore given, that whenever it was within the knowledge of the clerk or the overseers that the names of trustees, receivers, or other persons not beneficially interested in the property were entered in the owners column, the names of the actual owners, if ascertainable, should be substituted.

In the case of joint owners it is probable that in many cases one name only will have been returned as owner, though the clerks were directed, whenever the name and address of each owner could be ascertained, to insert them.

Moreover, the Act does not require any periodical revision of the valuation lists, as under the Metropolis Valuation Act of 1869, and a mere change of ownership would not render the preparation of a supplemental valuation list, or the revision of an existing list, necessary. In some cases it was found that the names of owners who had died several years ago had been retained. In one instance where a property had been sold in lots, it appeared that the names of the new owners had not been inserted in the valuation list, and the single name of the former owner was still in the list. In order to obviate the difficulty from this source, the clerks were directed, when they were aware that changes in ownership had taken place, to substitute the names of the present owners in the Returns, and to apply to the overseers or rate collectors to assist in revising the Returns before their final completion.

Although the foregoing remarks refer chiefly to the owners column in the valuation lists, it should be stated that this column has been found to be filled up with still less accuracy in the rate books in those parishes where the Union Assessment Committee Act is not in force. This observation applies to several important towns, where, owing to the large number of separate occupations, and the fact that the rents are paid in numerous cases to lessees, trustees, or agents, the difficulties of ascertaining the names of the owners or ground landlords may be said to be almost insurmountable.

When the necessary particulars relating to all the Unions in each county had been received by the Local Government Board, it became the duty of that Department to arrange and consolidate the separate parish and union returns into one Return for the whole county, and in doing this a further difficulty arose.

In order to make a correct county Return, the name of each owner ought to appear only once, and all the property belonging to him within the county should be entered under his name.

When, however, the same name appeared more than once in the Return, the Board in London could not determine whether there were two or more persons of the same name, or whether the name of the same person was repeated.

For the purpose as far as possible of identifying the owners, it had been required that their names and addresses, when the latter could be ascertained, should be given in full and as accurately as possible.

Where the same name with the same address occurred more than once in the returns, it might be assumed as probable that the entries referred to the same person; but when the same name occurred with a different address, it was probable, though by no means certain, that different persons were intended. In all these cases it became necessary to communicate with the clerks of the several Unions in which the name appeared, to ascertain if it referred to the same or different persons; thus, for example, the name of John Smith might appear in a county twelve times, and in as many different Unions, and inquiry had to be made in each Union to ascertain whether the name indicated one and the same person, or whether they were twelve separate persons of that name.

A reference to some of the Welsh counties, where there are large numbers of owners of the same Christian and surnames, e. g., the county of Cardigan, where the name David Davies occurs above fifty-three times, and John Jones above seventy times, will show the labour involved in this branch of the inquiry, and it may be added that, independently of other inquiries, upwards of 300,000 separate applications had to be sent to the clerks in order to clear up questions in reference to duplicate entries.

In some cases it has been found impracticable to discover the addresses of the owners, [illegible]ever there is a single entry in the address column within brackets it must be [illegible] show the parish in which the property is situate and not the residence of the [illegible]re there are two entries in the address column, one of them in brackets, it [illegible]at it has been ascertained that the two persons with the same address are two [illegible]rsons.

[illegible]here the owners appear to be corporate bodies, or to hold their lands in virtue of a [illegible]ic office, the names are printed in italics; but the Return must not be assumed to be complete in this respect, as there is reason to believe that in many cases the name of an individual is entered instead of the body or office which he represents, and this remark applies especially to glebe lands.

Notwithstanding all the care that has been taken, there can be no doubt that in several cases the name of the same person will appear more than once in the county return, but, on the other hand, there will be many cases in which only one name will appear as owner, although the property is really in several hands.

II. Estimated Extent.

The estimated extent of land in connexion with each assessment is probably taken, in most cases, either from some former rate or survey, or from the account given by the occupying tenant of the acreage of his holding. Extreme accuracy therefore could not be expected, and in many cases, especially in those of small properties, the acreage was found to be omitted altogether.

Where the acreage was not entered in the valuation lists, the clerks were requested to furnish the best estimate in their power; but there are instances in which the Board have been unable to obtain any sufficient information on this head, and in these cases the column is necessarily left blank.

It will doubtless be observed that a small acreage frequently represents a large rental, but this may arise either from the value of the land being increased by houses or other buildings upon it, or by the value of coal worked below its surface, or in some few cases by the absence of information as to the extent of a portion of the property. Instances will also be noticed of a large acreage being represented by a comparatively small rental; and the explanation of most of these will be found in the fact that a considerable portion of the land is of a mountainous, or similarly unproductive character.

III. Gross Estimated Rental.

The column in the valuation lists as to the gross estimated rental is necessarily filled up with more care, as it is the basis upon which the rateable value is determined. The amount appearing in the column of gross estimated rental in this Return under the name of each owner is the aggregate of the amounts appearing under his name in the various parochial lists of the county.

It must, however, always be borne in mind that the amount of the gross estimated rental as shown in the parish Returns, and consequently in this Return, is not the amount of the rent payable to the person under whose name as owner it appears, but the amount the entire rents which the occupying tenants of the whole property would be liable to pay to their immediate lessors.

In the case of purely agricultural land, the column "Gross Estimated Rental" is intended to show the rent at which the property might reasonably be expected to let from year to year, the tenant undertaking to pay all usual tenant's rates and taxes and the commutation rentcharge, if any, and, in the case of agricultural land, the value contained in this column will probably be found not to differ widely from the actual rental of the owner.

In the case of house or mineral property, the case is totally different, and this column affords no criterion of the rents received by the owners. This is very obvious in the case of land let on building leases. The rent received by the owner is, generally speaking, a mere ground rent reserved from the person to whom the land was originally let, of which no account is contained in the valuation lists, whilst the rental shown in those lists is the estimated amount of rent payable by the occupying tenant to the person from whom he takes the house. The ground landlord may be in the receipt of a few pounds, whilst the estimated rent of the occupying tenants, which nevertheless appears in the rental column under the name of the ground landlord, may be many thousand pounds.

There will be considerable discrepancies in the Return in respect of the rental of the owners of house property, arising from the different modes in which the valuation lists have been prepared, and which it has been found quite impossible to correct.

In some cases all the property of one ground landlord, with the amount of the rents payable by the occupying tenants to their intermediate lessors, will appear under the single name of the ground landlord, and a large rental will appear under his name, very far indeed exceeding the amount which he himself receives. There must be in the Return several such cases of which the Local Government Board can have no knowledge; but five remarkable instances may be referred to in the cases of Sir John St. Aubyn and Sir L. Palk in Devonshire, Lord Calthorpe in Warwickshire, and the Duke of Norfolk and Sir John William Ramsden in the West Riding of Yorkshire.

In other cases the names of the lessees will have been entered as owners, or the lessees will have been included in the aggregate number of owners under an acre, and in these cases the number of owners, according to the definition of the word "owner" adopted in this Return, will have been unduly increased.

It is quite impossible, without considerable local knowledge, and a minute investigation into the Returns of town parishes, which would occupy a very long time, to make the Return actually correct in this respect.

In like manner, where the land includes a coal mine which is leased to a company, the gross rental which appears in the parish lists may represent a sum considerably in excess of the sum which goes into the pockets of the landowner.

There are other matters in relation to the Return which require to be noticed.

Property which is not rated does not appear in the parish lists, and consequently not in this Return.

At the time when the Return was prepared the following kinds of property were not rateable:

1. Mines other than coal mines; and with respect to coal mines, it must be observed that in those parishes where there are only underground workings, and no surface occupation with the mine, the valuation lists do not indicate the particular lands under which the workings are carried on, and consequently do not show the enhanced value of the land to the owner.
2. Woods, except where they consist of or contain saleable underwood.

No notice is taken in the Return of any property of these descriptions.

Waste and Common Lands.

There is great uncertainty as to the lands under this heading. If they yield no profit they are not rated, and are not included in the valuation lists, and it is only where a parish map or survey has shown the extent of these lands that the clerk to the guardians or the parish officers could be expected to state the area accurately. In other cases an estimate, more or less conjectural, of the actual extent is all the information which could be obtained.

From the foregoing statement it will be seen that the present Return is simply a compilation from public documents, existing in each parish throughout England, corrected with such information as the union and parochial officers might possess, and of which, in the discharge of their public duty, it would be incumbent upon them to avail themselves whenever they might be required to prepare fresh valuation lists.

It can only be considered as professing to furnish the names of the several persons who, by common repute in each parish, are believed to be the owners of the separate holdings in respect of which the occupiers are liable to be assessed to the local rates.

In some instances the names of the owners may be found to be improperly given, in some the quantities of the land may be erroneously stated, and in others the gross estimated rental may represent very inaccurately the rent which is received by the reputed owner. In several cases the name of the same person will be found to be entered more than once in a county, owing to the difficulty of identification.

But, notwithstanding all the defects which have been adverted to, it is hoped that the Return will be found fairly to answer the purpose for which it is required, as showing with proximate accuracy the manner in which the land of the country is distributed, the names of the reputed owners, and the estimated extent and rental of the property held by each.

In support of the general accuracy of the Return, it may be stated that the total acreage of England, as given in the Census Report, from information furnished by the Ordnance Survey Department, is 37,319,221, and the total acreage, as shown by the present Return, is 34,538,158, being a difference of 2,781,063 acres. In the latter, however, the Metropolis is not included, and no account is taken of those waste lands the area of which could not be ascertained, of woods other than saleable underwoods, of rivers and roads, of Crown property not let, and of churchyards and other lands not rateable. It will also be remembered that there are several cases of owners whose names are given in the Return, but the acreage of whose property is not specified. These circumstances would appear to be sufficient to account for the discrepancy between the acreage stated in the two Returns.

With respect to the gross estimated rental, it may be stated that the total amount of the gross estimated rental of rateable property of all kinds in England and Wales, as shown by the annual return made by the several Assessment Committees and Parochial Authorities to the Local Government Board for the year 1873, is 131,853,715*l.*, whilst the total of the gross estimated rentals of the properties included in the present Return is 99,352,303*l.*

For the purpose of comparison it would be necessary to add to the last-mentioned sum the gross estimated rental of the Metropolis, amounting to 24,810,481*l.*, and of tithes amounting to (say) 5,000,000*l.*

The total would then stand thus:

Gross estimated rental as shown by the present Return ..	99,352,303
Of the Metropolis	24,810,481
Tithes	5,000,000
Total	£129,162,784

thus leaving a difference in gross estimated rental of 2,690,931*l.*, and which may be accounted for by the omission from the present Return of the following properties, viz. gas and water mains, tolls and dues from markets, bridges, ferries, docks, harbours, piers, canals and inland navigation, coal mines in parishes in which the surface workings are not situate, and Crown property in respect of which no Parliamentary subvention is paid.

The experience now acquired will show what are the defects in the present system of preparing the valuation lists in relation to the particulars required by the present Return, and what amendments are required in the law in order to ensure greater accuracy whenever it may be determined that another Return should be made.

Appended to the Return is a general county summary, showing (1) the total number of owners of one acre and upwards, and (2) the total number of owners of less than an acre, with the aggregate quantities and gross estimated rental of the lands belonging to each class. The summary also shows the estimated extent of the commons and waste lands throughout the whole country.

With reference to the number of owners, it will be seen that the totals are as follows:

Number of owners of one acre and upwards	269,547
Number of owners below an acre	703,289
Total	972,836

It should, however, be observed that as regards the number of owners of an acre and upwards, the Return only gives the totals of each county, and does not show the net number of owners after deducting those who appear in more counties than one; and with respect to the owners below an acre, no attempt has been made to distinguish those who hold property either in more than one county, or in more than one Union, and consequently in estimating the net number of owners of each class a deduction will have to be made.

In relation to the first class, an examination of a certain proportion of the names has been made, and the result gives, as an approximate estimate, about 6000 owners as holding property in more than one county.

As regards the second class, a similar estimate cannot be given, as the names of the owners are not included in the Return.

The tabulation and detailed examination of this very voluminous and complicated Return have devolved upon Mr. Thomas Harries of this Department, and in justice to him it should be added that he has discharged the duty with great care, attention, and zeal.

JOHN LAMBERT, Secretary.

LOCAL GOVERNMENT BOARD,
22nd July, 1875.

NOTE.

As the term "Domesday Book" has been frequently applied to the present Return, it may not be out of place to refer briefly to the celebrated Survey of the Kingdom which was made by command of the Conqueror, in order to show the different character of the two undertakings, and the different means resorted to in their compilation.

In the year 1085, serious apprehensions appear to have been entertained of an invasion of the kingdom by the Danes, and the difficulty which the King then experienced in putting the country into a satisfactory state of defence led him to form the notion of having a general survey made of the whole kingdom, so, as Sir Martin Wright observes, "to discover the quantity of every man's fee, and to fix his homage," or, in other words, to ascertain the quantity of land held by each person; and the quota of military aid which he was bound to furnish in proportion to the extent of his holding.

To secure accuracy of results, Commissioners or King's Justiciaries (Legati Regis) were appointed with ample powers to ascertain "upon the oath of the several Sheriffs, Lords of Manors, Presbyters, Reeves, Bailiffs, or Villans, according to the nature of the place, what was the name of the place, who held it in the time of the Confessor, who was the present holder, how many hides of land there were in the manor, how many carrucates in demense, how many homagers, how many villans, how many cotarii, how many servi, what freemen, how many tenants in socage, what quantity of wood, how much meadow and pasture, what mills, and fish-ponds, how much added or taken away, what was the gross value in King Edward's time, what the present value, and how much each free-man or soc-man had or has." All this was to be estimated—1st, as the estate was held in the time of the Confessor; 2ndly, as it was bestowed by the King himself; and, 3rdly, as its value stood at the time of the survey.

All these particulars were ascertained for each county, the Commissioners sending in Returns (breviates) for each county separately, and from these Returns Domesday Book, or the General Register for the whole kingdom, was compiled.

It will be seen, therefore, that the object of the Conqueror's survey was to ascertain the amount of military service and other assistance upon which he could depend; and that for this purpose he instituted an inquiry of a very searching and inquisitorial character into the nature and extent of the landed possessions of his subjects, sending special Commissioners into every locality, with power to summon the inhabitants and compel them to make a full disclosure of their property on oath.

Notwithstanding, however, these stringent measures for ensuring accuracy, there is no doubt that the Commissioners did not always obtain or furnish correct information, and that sometimes, as in the case of the present return, the statements of what we should now designate as the "Gross Estimated Rental," and the "Estimated Extent," are not altogether reliable. Ingulph, the historian of Croyland, referring to the survey of the possessions of that abbey, expressly says, "Isti" (taxatores) "penes nostrum, monasterium benevoli et amantes non ad verum pretium nec ad verum spatium nostrum monasterium librabant, misericorditer præcaventes in futurum exactionibus et aliis oneribus, piisima nobis benevolentia providentes."—Oxford edition, p. 79.

With respect to the result of this inquiry, so far as it discloses the number of landowners existing at that time, it must be observed that although the Domesday Book may be considered as a fair record of the number of persons having a direct interest in land, it is almost impossible, owing to the different designations under which they are classified, to distinguish those who may properly be considered as owners from those who were in the possession of land as mere occupiers only.

The following estimate, which is taken from the work of Sir H. Ellis, may perhaps be taken as showing proximately the number of persons who can properly be regarded as having claim to be considered as holders of land upon some legally recognised tenure:

Tenants in capite, or persons holding directly from the Crown	1,400
Subfeudatarii, or under-tenants holding their estates from some mesne Lord	7,871
Liberi homines, or freeholders under the Lord of a manor, usually by military service	12,400
Sochemanni or Soemen, holding on some fixed and determined rent service	23,072
Homines, or feudatory tenants holding on homage	1,300
Cotarii and Coscets, or cottagers holding small parcels of land	7,000
Presbyteri, or clergy	1,000
Radmanni, a species of tenants in socage	370
Milites, or persons holding under mesne Lords in respect of military service	140
Aloarii, or absolute hereditary owners	12
Other owners, viz. Angli and Anglici, Beures or Coliberti, Censarii or Censores, &c. ..	248
Total of recorded landowners ..	54,813

The Burgenses, or Burgesses, who were returned as 7,968, are not included in the above list, as it is impossible to distinguish those who held lands in their individual from those who held in a corporate capacity, and many of them were evidently not owners in any sense of the term.

Moreover the Villeins, of whom there were 108,407, are omitted, because it is quite certain that, when they occupied small portions of land, they did so on sufferance only. In fact they were regarded as mere chattels, which could be bought or sold, and they were not allowed by law to acquire any property, either in land or in goods.

It should be added that the present counties of Northumberland, Cumberland, Westmoreland, and Durham were not included in the survey.

J. L.

NOTE ON THE RETURN FOR WARWICKSHIRE.

Since the List for this County was printed off and the type distributed, it has been discovered that, in the Return for the Parish of Birmingham, leaseholders have in some instances been included as owners, in consequence of the names of the ground landlords not being entered in the rate-books, and the parish officers not being able to identify the property belonging to them, either for the purpose of ascertaining its acreage or its gross estimated rental.

The following persons consequently do not appear in the Return, although as ground landlords they possess large properties in the parish, viz.:

The Trustees of Lench's Charity; Sir E. Gooch; Trustees of Colemore Estate; Trustees of Ebenezer and Cornelius Robins; and General Vyse.

It should be further stated that although the following names are inserted in the List, a considerable portion of the property, which as ground landlords they hold in the Parish of Birmingham, is not included in the Return:

The Trustees of King Edward's School (entered as Grammar School, Governors of); the Rev. George Inge; Earl Howe; and Sir Josiah Mason.

NOTE AS TO JOINT OWNERS.

While conspicuous instances of large rentals ascribed to individual owners are disclosed by the Return, those instances are frequently dwarfed by the revenue (gross estimated rental) accruing to joint owners in the same county. Hertford, for example, contains part of the London and North Western Railway, which there owns 497 acres, carrying a gross estimated rental of 73,382*l.*; in Lancashire the Mersey Docks and Harbour Board possess 330 acres, with a gross estimated rental of 447,016*l.*; in Sussex the London, Brighton, and South Coast Railway hold 2,162 acres, gross estimated rental 91,322*l.*; in York, North Riding, the North Eastern Railway has 2,057 acres, the gross estimated rental being 141,583*l.*; and in the West Riding the Midland Counties Railway holds 1,727 acres, with a gross estimated rental of 124,183*l.*

* In Rutland there are no holdings whose extent is unknown. Wherever the Return fails to state the "Extent of Lands," the properties should be scored under the head 0—. In Lancaster, where on the first page alone are to be found four several holdings, whose "Gross estimated Rentals" amount to £14,658— these holdings would come under 0—.
